LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

6a. Module Description

As organisations develop they must always have an eye on the future and make decisions that influence performance. Planning and decision making is a core aspect of business strategy and this module looks at the accounting and finance information that is used in planning and support of the decision making process and control against those plans. It will introduce and demonstrate the accounting techniques used in planning and control and short and long term decision making. The module will also draw on aspects of organisational behaviour, and the risky, uncertain and quickly-changing environment in which many organisations operate.

Students registered on BSc (Hons) Accounting & Finance, BSc (Hons) Accounting & Finance [extended] or BSc (Hons) Accounting & Finance (with placement year) who complete this module successfully may be exempted from the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA) unit F5 Performance Management.

6b. Outline Content

This module introduces and demonstrates the accounting techniques which are used in planning and control and short and long term decision making. It critiques the various techniques, discusses the theoretical underpinning and reflects on application and validity. The module will also draw on aspects of organisational behaviour, and the risky, uncertain and quickly-changing environment in which many organisations operate.

This module enables students to develop key skills essential in the financial management of organisations, and ensures that students will be able to apply the various techniques used and interpret the information produced.

This module enables students to develop key skills essential in the financial management of organisations, and ensures that students will be able to apply the various techniques used and interpret the information produced. They will be expected to critique the tools used and discuss their applicability in a service driven global business environment. This will be applied to a real company in a final coursework.

Given the importance placed on planning and control and decision making in organisations and given that the effects of these are felt on staff at all levels, this module has been designed so that it can assist all those who are planning a wider career in business as well as those wishing to specialise in accountancy and financial management.

Syllabus:

A Specialist cost and management accounting techniques (including ABC, target costing)

B Decision-making techniques (including relevant cost analysis, limiting factors, pricing decisions, dealing with risk and uncertainty in decision-making)

C Budgeting and control (including Budgetary systems and types of budget, standard costing, variances and performance analysis)

D Performance measurement and control (including divisional performance and transfer pricing, external considerations and behavioural aspects, performance analysis in not-for-profit organisations and the public sector)
