LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

6a. Module Description

In this module, you will learn not only to watch films but also to do visual analyses of what you experience (what you see, what you hear, what you feel, what you think). In a next step, you will put what you experience into a theoretical context.

You will study a range of films from across the globe and from different time periods. This module presents you with a diverse curriculum with many non-white and women filmmakers, non-Anglophone films, films from different time periods and different places on the globe, mainstream commercial movies, as well as experimental pieces. You will come away with a firm grounding in film language and key theoretical concepts.

6b. Outline Content

Film language will include:

- Editing
- Mise-en-scène, including acting
- Cinematography
- Sound

Film concepts may include:

- narrative
