LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

6a. Module Description

You'll work through the main theories and principles of marketing for the marketing manager or business leader, understanding how those theories and principles can be applied in practice to a range of business contexts; from business-to-consumer, business-to-business, charities, arts, to tourism and service-based industries. You'll focus particularly on global business challenges; competition and defining value; a digitally based economy; and societal marketing (corporate social responsibility, sustainability, morals and ethics) whilst also understanding the legal framework that impacts upon marketers and marketing practice such as consumer and data protection laws. This module will challenge you to examine marketing problems that have faced brands and organisations to critically analyse their approach and suggest new alternatives. You'll gain a firm grasp of the scope of marketing in general business management and leadership roles as well as a clear understanding of the specialist areas of study and work as you plan your lifelong career in this very broad industry.

Successful completion of this module by students registered on the Masters in Business Administration or Masters in Business Administration (with placement) provides exemption from the Chartered Management Institute's unit 710 Marketing Strategy.

6b. Outline Content

The value, scope and history of marketing; business philosophies; marketing in a global context; marketing strategies and planning; the digital environment; market research and consumer behaviour; business markets, services and other marketing contexts; creating value and managing brands; pricing; promotion, distribution channels; and marketing metrics.

For the assessment, students will have the opportunity to undertake independent study by writing a case study of a brand or organisation. This will support their employability as they focus on a business context and aspect of marketing of their choice.
