LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

6a. Module Description

You'll critically review existing entrepreneurship and innovation models and concepts, including process models, and explore 'patchwork' and 'opportunity' based approaches to entrepreneurship and innovation. During the module you'll explore how 'innovation' comes from a variety of sources, examine the principles of 'open' innovation, and recognise the importance of exploiting available networks and of developing an innovative culture.

Your ability to analyse and critique 'entrepreneurial' business models, both existing and conceptual will be improved through the utilisation of tools such as the Business Model Canvas. You'll think creatively by proposing innovative solutions to creating and capturing value through the medium of consultancy report and applying some of the theoretical underpinnings of the module.

Finally, the principles of entrepreneurship and innovation are analysed in the context of entrepreneurs, start-up and family businesses from across the globe, in various commercial, public-sector and not-for-profit sectors, emphasising the importance and challenges of 'social' and 'sustainability-led' innovation.
