LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

6a. Module Description

This module aims to enhance your employability and bring authenticity to your research investigations by introducing contemporary business research in areas of Accounting, Finance, Business Management and Operations Management. You'll explore a detailed area of contemporary research in the modern business world utilising data and information from public sources which provide the analytical basis of your research topic. In this way, your research can include evolving business situations such as: adoption of new technologies, strategies for a post-Covid19 business environment, changes in customer behaviour after Covid19, business challenges in post-Brexit Britain etc. Your module tutor will support your progression through the various stages of the research process including the introduction of theoretical frameworks, targeted literature searches, data collection using professional business database and data analysis utilizing different methods. The final business report allows you to engage in a substantial piece of individual desk-based/secondary research focused on a field relevant to your degree award and subject.

6b. Outline Content

The subject content of this business report links directly to relevant fields in all Finance, Accounting and Operations Management Courses. Lectures and online courses are designed to help students work on their business report and support them at different stages of their research process. Online teaching topics will include the introduction of theoretical frameworks, the use of literature, research resources, data collection, methodology, data analysis, and critical writings in business report, etc. In addition to teaching sessions and online courses, students have the opportunities to engage with their supervisors for a total of 6 x 20 minute online meetings per project. Students are required to prepare and contribute to sessions to ensure develop their project smoothly. Supervisory meeting 1: Research Skills. Supervisory meeting 2: Supervisor provides feedback on the chosen field of research for the final business report, and set up agreed research aims and objectives. Supervisory meeting 3: Students present their proposal to supervisor and proposed timeline to finish their report. Supervisors provide feedback on the proposal. Supervisory meeting 4: Students present their results and findings to meet agreed aim, objectives and outline; supervisors and peers to feedback. Supervisory meeting 5 - 6: Students present their draft business report for feedback. Supervisor provides comments for revision. Teaching topics will include introduction to business research methods, the use of literature, secondary data collection, methodology, data analysis, and critical report writing.
