LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

6a. Module Description

This module introduces you to the fundamental principles of company law as the legal framework under which business are established and operate. The module aims to capture the dynamism of this aspect of law and to develop your awareness of the place and function of company law in a practical and theoretical context. The module aims to develop an understanding of the legal principles and theories underpinning the law relating to companies and focuses on four major areas: corporate personality, rights and liabilities; corporate governance and corporate social responsibility; shareholders rights and remedies; companies in financial difficulties. The module will facilitate both a 'black letter' and socio-legal approach to law and will provide both a practical and theoretical framework for the law relating to businesses.

6b. Outline Content

- Starting a new business through the vehicle of a company, partnership, LLP or as a sole trader, and the key differences between these legal forms
- Corporate personality and the company's constitution
- Procedures and rules for proper governance of businesses, including directors' duties and corporate governance
- The interests, rights, obligations and powers of stakeholders in a business
- The termination of a solvent business, corporate insolvency and personal bankruptcy
