LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

6a. Module Description

This module will introduce you to some of the key Greek, Roman and Biblical texts which underpin English literature and which have been translated and adapted by each new generation of writers. Comparisons will also be drawn with mythical and magical narratives from other traditions, such as the tales included in The Arabian Nights.

Over the course of the module you will engage with the ways in which these pivotal stories have continued to have a shaping influence on English literature, and with the different ways in which they have been interpreted by later readers and writers. This module will complement the other literature modules you are taking this year as it will help you appreciate the importance of understanding the larger literary culture within which works such as Paradise Lost and The Waste Land were produced.

You will study creation narratives from different cultures, comparing and contrasting classical stories, such as the myth of Prometheus, with the Genesis narrative, before exploring how all these ancient stories have been revised and updated by later writers and artists. You will consider the different ways in which writers have depicted the struggles between humanity and the gods – creating stories full of heroic adventures, human suffering and inner conflict. You will have the opportunity to read several different narratives of magic and transformation, including some of the memorable myths the Roman poet Ovid included in his Metamorphoses. You will learn about the classical origins of familiar fairy tales, before exploring how these fairy tales, in their turn, have been reinvented for a modern age.
