LEARNING, TEACHING AND ASSESSMENT INFORMATION

6a. Module Description

This module aims to develop your skill in acting for the camera for applications on screen. You will consider the potential of online platforms for performance work, the implications of a remote audience and consider the principles that separate mediated acting from live stage performance. You will also learn studio etiquette and the variety of production roles that support acting for camera in both television and film.

You will work as actors in collaboration with fellow students, either from the performance courses or the BA (Hons) Film & TV Production degree, developing your collaborative and networking skills. You will work on original scripts and may have opportunities to workshop the material in order to develop the strongest possible scenes. You will then work as actors with peers as directors, camera operators, floor managers and editors.

You will develop your understanding of story arcs and characterisation in your script and prepare your performance. You will work as a team of actors to realise the project, mirroring the professional experience of actors working in television to prepare you for your future career.

6b. Outline Content

- Exploration of varieties of screen acting.
- Consider mediated acting applications as distinct from live stage acting.
- Learn studio and set etiquette and the production roles essential to each.
- Understand and interpret new scripts to prepare an acting performance of your role.
- Contribute to constructive, critical discussion of scripts in order to improve their quality and ensure contemporary relevance.
- Work in collaboration with students from either the performance courses or Film and TV production as an actor.
